The performance of the Cuban state and government in combating the COVID-19 pandemic inside Cuba is in stunning contrast to the disastrous performance by governmental authorities in the United States, including at the Federal level in Washington DC. Gross negligence by US authorities – within an already broken and grotesquely unequal health-care system – has led to wholly unnecessary rises in disease, death, infection, and spread. US pandemic deaths are at 140,000 and rising.

Florida, with a large Cuban-American population, is now a world epicenter of toxic COVID-19 contagion. Other US states and regions show mounting crises in hospital and ICU overflows; supplies in equipment and PPE; overwhelmed hospital staff and so on.

The pandemic is also particularly acute across the Americas where Brazil, Ecuador, Mexico, and Peru, highlight the unfolding horror shows in Latin America and Central America.

These facts are clear and irrefutable: Cuba stands out for its performance, leadership, and results.

The Trump Administration has tried to blackmail and pressure sovereign nations to reject Cuba's internationalist medical solidarity. The exact opposite has happened.

These inspiring Cuban missions - The Henry Reeve Brigades - continue to render invaluable direct assistance to treat COVID-19 patients. Equally important, Cuban medical skills, scientific experience, and pharmaceutical advances are implementing preventive measures to avoid outbreaks, clusters, rising curves, and symptoms before they overwhelm already weak health-care systems.
